

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Helen Timo, whose PhD was on Morris, lives and teaches in Cambridge and contributes regularly to The Journal.

Paddy O'Sullivan teaches Environmental Sciences at Plymouth Polytechnic and is enthusiastically Green.

Michael Fellman teaches History at Simon Fraser University, in British Columbia.

Jan Marsh is a freelance writer and regular contributor, whose most recent book, The Legend of Elizabeth Siddal, is reviewed in this issue.

Lesley Baker is an Australian member of the Society especially concerned with ecological issues; she would welcome correspondence with English Morrisians.

Edmund Penning-Rowsell, a founding member of the Society and a Vice President, is a book publisher who has been Wine Correspondent of the Financial Times since 1964.