

John Butler Yeats, father of William Butler Yeats, the poet, regularly frequented the Contemporary Club room at 116 Grafton Street, Dublin, where he discoursed on art, literature and philosophy, and made numerous sketches, such as this one of Morris. It is reproduced by kind permission of the National Museum of Ireland.