David Latham edited with his wife Sheila the William Morris Bibliography which appeared in our Volume V No. 3 (Summer 1983) issue: he lectures at the University of Toronto and is a Life Member of the WMS. The research on which the present article was based was done while the Lathams were living in Kelmscott House some years ago.

Barbara Gribble lectures in the Department of English, Memphis State University, Memphis, Tennessee, USA.

John Purkis is a long-standing member of the Society, who is Staff Tutor in Literature for the Open University (East Anglian Region). In 1961 he won the Peter Floud Memorial Prize with his The Icelandic Jaunt—available from the Society.

Stephen Coleman is working on the history of the Socialist League following his recent Doctoral thesis on the early history of the Socialist Movement in Britain: he is a lecturer in History.

John Kay, who contributes the review of the Lethaby Exhibition, is a founder-member of the WMS, was on its first Committee and designed its first exhibition—The Typographical Adventure of William Morris. He rejoined the Society's Committee three years ago and is a Trustee of Kelmscott House.
